About

Are you looking for an exciting study abroad opportunity in Japan? Founded in 1877, the University of Tokyo (UTokyo) is one of the leading institutions of higher education in Asia. The school offers a variety of programs for international students, including degree programs in English, exchange programs for students at our partner universities, and short-term summer courses and programs for university students residing outside Japan.

Four current and former students of UTokyo will come to our New York office to share their experiences of life at the university, along with a professor in charge of global education. Come join us in our office either in person or online to learn the exciting opportunities available at UTokyo! The event is open and free to anyone interested in our university.

*Pre-registration required. (See website)
